Steps to get HIGH Google rankings
Posted by Mikedb - 2010/03/17 21:48

Hi all,

Carty asked me to make a post about SEO.
The reason for this is that I know a little about it ;)

Ok here is the information for high rankings:

Keyword in URL
Example: dog training

I will only buy:
dogtraining.com
dogtraining.org
dogtraining.net

dog-training.com net and org

mydogtraining.com net org (my could also be the)

I won't buy anything else. Go to the next niche if you can find one, there are just too many ;)
If I'm really targeting I only go for dogtraining.com
That is the best you can get.

What is Google looking for?

Keyword in Title
Keyword in Description
Keyword in H1
Keyword in tekst (at least 3 times based on a text with at least 500 words)
Keyword at the end of the text
Keyword bold within the text once Related keywords (LSI) in the text (Use Google Keyword Tool to find the most relevant related keywords to your main keyword...TIP the once that are on top are the most relevant)
Make your text at least 50% unique
Backlinks, related and at least PR3
Fresh content, updated
Old URL's
How many times your site is visited
How long someone stays on your site
Visitor Bookmarking the page

What will hurt your rankings:

Only images
Flash
Frames
keyword stuffing
Too many backlinks, too fast

Wrong navigation, if possible put your navigation to the right. Google looks at a site top down from left to right!

I use about 15-20 programs to get my sites ranked high.

My new sites are indexed within 30 minutes and ranked on the first page within 2 weeks.

Hope this helps!

Any questions?
Do let me know!

regards,

Mike

There is already a tool released out by another member in this forum which will submit your sites to these urls automatically so you don't have to open these one by one manually, search for index tool here.

Carty..

Major Google Algorithm Changes this week.
Posted by thriftgirl62 - 2010/11/21 09:43

Paid links, blog comments, footers, navigational links and forum profiles don't matter much anymore

Google shifted the weight to contextual links found only in the actual page content but the Good News is you can link to your own blogs and sites too. Use common sense - if doesn't look or sound real Google ignores it and you waste your time.

  http://www.kayross.com/blog   Kay's Blog is an excellent example of real. That means dates, times, anything out of sync with "normal" will be caught

Use the thru tags to summarize what the page is about and the main body content will carry less weight. Using the ALT Tags will set you apart from the rest who don't use them. That's gotta be worth something.

I know there are things left unsaid that Google rewards you for if they see quality volunteered instead of forced or paid for. Like taking out the trash. If Johnny Boy does it without being told, you surprise him with some Plumb Pudding Pie. Let's hope he likes that pie or he'll never take the trash out again and you might not ever know why.

Another example is http://www.davidpye.com   He gets almost 3,000 visitors a day. By 12:19am there were already 117 visitors on his site.
I've setup a links page where anyone who has a website that may be of interest to others (or if you know of a useful site) can add a link to it from my website. Google spiders this site on a weekly basis and I seem to draw my fair share of visitors, so please feel free to share what you have with others. The only stipulations are that web links can only be for free sites, suitable for all ages and legal.

Jerry West. Last November 2010 but nobody paid attention.
They just like to think they're doing something I guess.

 Official Local Search Ranking Report

  The Official Local Search Ranking Report came out at the same time
 - 1 day apart.

Too LATE for the new schema to be reflected in the so-called Official Ranking Report.

 SCHEMA.org

Again, nobody is paying attention- give it another year and they'll be broke!
Not anyone here - I mean the clueless wandering wonder boys out there!!

Or , Maybe the schema doesn't affect ranking? who knows but I would think it does. Aw, I forgot,
Nobody is supposed to be thinking!!
