

[BUG] Deleted feed items download again

Posted by Iugus1 - 2010/08/06 04:07

If I delete an item from the feed it is downloaded again a few feed updates later after I exit the software and then run the software again.

Nope, that doesn't happen here. Try updating the feed without deleting and tell me if they're re-downloaded (duplicates).

The feed has never re-downloaded a duplicate unless I have changed a title prior to checking the feed again. The feeds do download deleted posts again but not every time. Sometimes I have to leave the program and return a few times. So far I have not been able to recreate a circumstance where it always does it.

Just tested again. I deleted an item from the feed then after reloading the program 8 times over the course of an hour the deleted item was downloaded again.

Can you please tell me the feed url that gives this problem? You can email it to me if you'd like to keep it private.

Also, can you try adding Engadget.com's rss feed and tell me if it does the same thing.

Regards,
Carty..

As far as I am aware it is any and all feeds. I will run an experiment over the next few hours and let you know if it is any specific feed.

Ok, just sent an email to ownXX@cartxxxstuXX.com (hidden so it cannot be spammed) hopefully that is the correct address.

After more investigation I have found that only the feed I sent in the email causes auto blogger to re-download deleted items. If you figure it out I would appreciate it if you let me know what was unique about the feed that should cause this to happen. It is an intriguing problem from a logic point of view.

Correction. Two more feeds downloaded deleted items after a day had passed. Makes it really awkward to see what is new as the sort by date function does not sort correctly either.

Add another feed downloading deleted items. It looks like it will end up being all the feeds. Ok, any feed item deleted over 24 hours prior is re-downloaded when I update the feed.

In total 11 feeds from different websites have now all downloaded every item that had previously been deleted.
