

Create Blog after Keyword Researched

Posted by Richard Cheah - 2010/03/14 12:27

Hi Carty

There are many ways to do keyword research to find the niche that is lacking.

What is the best way to find the niche that will lead to the creation of the blog with the use of your software?

Reason I asked is because other ways of researched may not necessary lead to a profitable blog after creation.

I think all these factors are closely related to each other.

The saying:

"You start right, you will end right!"

Look forward to a favorable reply.

Thank you.

Yours sincerely

Dear Richard,

You're exactly correct. "You start right, you will end right!". Please have a look at the 7-Day Action Plan to Make Over 150 USD/day.

In that guide, I mention that any niche is a good niche as long as it has some competition. I can now make a refined statement by changing "competitors" to "advertisers". Because they're the one who is going to pay you.

I always recommend you start with something that you're already interested in rather than search for something that has high-pay out but greek and latin to you. When you're going to start with some topic that you already know, you will get more time to learn the system rather than spending to learn the topic first.

So after you decide on what niche you're going to take based on your interest, just do a google search for that keyword. If you find some adsense ads and a lot of websites in the search results page, it is a good niche to begin with!

Regards,
Carty..
