7-Day Action Plan To Make Over $150/day
Posted by Carty - 2010/03/14 19:37

First of all, you must understand that you cannot make $100 USD the very next day you start. It takes some time for your blogs to get indexed and later grow in traffic and as it does, so your revenue too. I have seen a fresh blog make $1 per day in less than a month from its start. So theoretically speaking, with 50 blogs, you could make 100/day in about 2 months from start.

2 months from starting the 50th blog to be precise. I would suggest you build 1 blog per day so it takes 2 months to complete 50 blogs and in the next 2 months, you would reach your goal of $100/day with Adsense.

Some key points before building blogs:
-You're going to build high-quality automated blogs with my software! Unlike other softwares which post every junk/garbage available at the feed source, with this software, you will have a more controlled high quality content posted to your blog. Just like you would manually do. That is why people using even the trial version of my software have started to gain some organic visitors to their blog in less than a week time.

So focus on building quality blogs. That is why I don't recommend building more than 1 blog per day. Junk blogs do make money but only high quality ones last longer. So you will take time tweaking every blog you make to its best.

7-Day Action Plan

Day 1:
You're going to do a little bit of research today. Find all profitable niches. High paying keyword niches or whatever. You don't need to hunt for keywords paying $10/click. $1/click is still a good rate. So pick ANY niche with some COMPETITION.

You can collect 50 niches by day 1. Collect about 7-10 for this week. If the niche is too broad, you're going to split them into sub-niches onto sub-domains with a highest traffic keyword in the main domain.

For example, if you choose video game as your niche, you can have sub-niches like xbox 360, ps3, wii and sorts..

So you can have a main domain like video-game-keyword-domain.com and build a blog with broad keywords. Then for each sub-niche, you can have them on sub-domains like xbox360.video-game-domain.com ps3.video-game-domain.com and so on..

Later, you can also find more micro niches specific to games, like GearsOfWar.video-game-domain.com and sorts.

But don't go very deep because the sub-niche should also have some search demands and frequently updated content in other blogs most importantly.

Note: Sub-niche on Sub domains is for wordpress self hosted type of blogs. In case of blogger, you can simply create another blog for each sub-niche.

So today (1st day) you have found around 7-10 niches (including sub niches)

It should not take more than 2 hours to find this. Spend some time and find great niches. Doesn't matter even if you take an extra hour.

Finally, if you have some extra time left over to work for today, find some keywords for all the niches. You can use the free adwords keyword tool for this.

Day 2-6:
Starting from today, using the niches you found yesterday, you will build 1 blog per day on each niche.

Again, don't hurry up. Don't build more than 1 blog per day! Focus on building high-quality blogs.

By quality blogs, I mean, use all possible SEO features like proper titles, keywords in description, and sorts. Spend some time on proper placement of adsense ads too. You can also customize the theme to match your niche and a lot of tweaks can be made. Explore them.

For building a blog till tweaking to its best, you should spend around 1 hours which will later reduce to 30 minutes when you get experienced.

Here comes the important work for a quality blog: FINDING QUALITY CONTENT! It is very easy. Just search in google for "your niche" and "blog". So for our video game niche, we may search for "video game blog" in Google. Go through all the sites in the first 2 pages. You should find about 3-5 good websites with content updated regularly.

What is Good Content? A post that has lot of text and 1 image at the beginning of the post. Good websites use this standard.

Once you have found 3-5 feed sources, add them to the software. You should not take more than 1 hour maximum to find 3-5 feeds sources and adding to the software. Later this may reduce to about 30 minutes only.

Rest of the time, you will spend for promoting the blogs. You promote the blog that you built last week. So there's nothing for the first week. For promotion, you can submit a couple of posts to all social bookmarking sites via OnlyWire. No need to pay for their service. You're going to have 50 blogs, just add a linkback to them in one of your blogs and you can use their service entirely for free to all your 50 blogs You can also go a bit further and make some web 2.0 properties with backlinks depending on the time you have.

If you're using WordPress, several auto promotion plug-ins are available. Like auto submitting to social bookmarking sites, auto tweet every post and so on. Explaining all of them would take another page and may go out of focus so you can explore them yourself or ask here by posting a new thread in the appropriate section.

So in a week, you would have built about 5 blogs and later when you get experiences, you can build about 7-10 blogs utilizing extra time available for you. Within the next 2 weeks, these blogs should be making around $1/day on average = $7-10/day.

For your goal of $100/day, you just need to repeat this for 6-10 times or 6-10 weeks. I say 6 is enough because, by this time, the blogs built on first week may get more traffic and the earnings should also increase to about $2/day. So you will see an exponential growth in revenue.

Day 7:
Once a week, you're going to open my software, click on update all blogs and go for a coffee or do some other work. Come back after a while and quickly scan through all the new posts fetched and delete the ones you don't like. Then scan again through the remaining items one by one and make any minor changes like to tiles. Also on post content a bit if required.

Finally, select all items and click the button "Post all marked items". Go away again for a while and come back later to see all the posts scheduled for the week.

Lastly:
I thought this method to some of my students a while ago who paid me $XXX and FORCED them to apply. Now they thank me everyday and I'm giving it to you for FREE. So it is proven to make money and a lot of other people follow it. But as mentioned in the very beginning, you won't make your money right from the very next day. It does take some time to see your first dollar from these blogs (less than a month) but after that it is going to be increasing ever on auto-pilot! Somewhere in the middle, if you're going to get bored and be diverted to other work, I'm sorry I cannot guarantee you anything. Ultimately it's up to you to decide onto take action or not. Anytime, I'm here to help my very best.

Regards,
Carty..

Great post Carty!

I will try this out and post my experiences here. I suggest that you open a new category called 'Testimonials' and offer your members a small perk for posting their success stories. You can also utilize these honest testimonials for your future launches, as well as keep the other members motivated to use your software.

Great work bro!

I use all the top ones. To begin with: Akismet for filtering out spam,
All-In-One SEO - lot of seo benefits
HeadSpace 2 - takes care if meta information
Quick Meta Keywords
Google sitemaps - Dynamically generates sitemap
Adsense deluxe - to insert ads but I mostly insert them directly from themes.
Max Ping optimizer - To prevent frequent pings Wp Sticky - to sticky a post in frontpage making people to opt-in Wp Lightbox - To graphically overlay images when clicked
FlickrRSS - To show flicker photos in my blog
Feedburner feed smith
Feed Footer
FireStats - I also prefer GA for better monitoring of stats at 1 location
Simple Tags - Auto generate tags

Get recent comments - onto sidebar widget
WP paginate - at the bottom
WP Contact form - so they could contact me for ads :)
WP Cache - to improve performance and load times.
Share This
Sociable
WP-Post Ratings
TweetSuite
WP Greet Box

These are a bunch of them. In some blogs I use more but these are the ones I most commonly use. I usally install these on one blog, take a complete backup of the plugins folder under wp_content and upload them all to my other blogs so I can then just activate them from dashboard instead of having them to be re-installed on all the blogs I create.

Wow thanks for that! There's a fair amount of plugins you have there!

Another question :) you mentioned that sometimes you have domains on your own and you also have subniches for the sub domains. Do you do this for all your sites? Or do you put them mostly on wordpress.com?

And about domains and keyword research if you do buy your own; do you stress the importance of all that low competition, long tail keywords? Or is having a high ad cost with a million competing pages keywords good enough? If so do you SEO optimize for this hugely competitive and expensive keyword?

Lots of questions I know but I really want to make this work!

I use sub-domains on my own domain name. No need to look out for WordPress.com or others :)

Say my domain name is videogameblog.com
I create sub niches on sub domains like xbox.videogameblog.com
ps3.videogameblog.com and so on.. I even have sub domains like gearsofwar.videogameblog.com and so on..

It is the individual page that ranks so no need to do extensive keyword researches. Those stuff are for single site owner who work their a off in getting first page rankings. But we're talking about making more blogs and monetize even with the trickle of traffic you may receive, which eventually adds up to a large number when you have more blogs :)

Thats kind of a relief :laugh: Oh wait does that mean you still have to do the keyword research for the individual pages? Or we just rely on the feed's that you pull to have optimised seo and keywords?

I'm going to start looking for those niches today, so I can start building the sites tomorrow =)

Hey Carty, I'm working through the site and the software. Some stuff pretty cool, but some things could use some improvement (but you did mention that you were going to add some fantastic new changes within the next few months so I cant wait =)

I got another question though. Do you have any particular reason why in your action plan you have only 1 blog a day? I pretty much have the whole day to myself and to focus on this, but I can't really see what else I can do rather than tweak the site a bit.

What else do you recommend to do if you have plenty of time? Is it alright to build more sites if you do?

Yes, you will love the new features that I have planned to add in this beast :)

I insist on 1 blog per day because I want you to spend the rest of your time in promoting the blogs you build. The more you promote, more money you make. In the plan, I suggest after building a blog, do a couple of backlink submissions and sorts in less than half hour to promote the blogs. This is enough if you want to make just a dollar per blog. But when you promote even more, like for example writing some articles and submitting for backlinks and sorts, you could improve this 1 dollar per blog to even 10$ per blog.

Hope you get my point.

Blog promotion is absolutely essential and it determines how much money you make. For beginners, I suggest laying a strong foundation. SEO to be precise. You must have the best onsite SEO, most part of which is complete when you use WordPress. Make sure you use a CSS based, table less theme and use proper keywords on your blog home page. Try to have a lengthy home page with a lot of posts shown there. Try to find more of text content for your blogs rather than focusing on images and videos. Make sure you take advantage of all the freely available SEO plug-ins like All-in-one seo, headspace and sorts.

When the on-site SEO is good, with frequent updates of content, you will get a lot of organic visitors. Social bookmarking is just to index your new blog or a way to let the search engines know that you have some blog out there. You don't really use it for traffic. Social traffic never converts! They just help in SEO.

Hello Carty,

I purchased your software 2 days ago... and this is my first post here.

Normally I build my Wordpress blogs manually; but I am getting tired of building one blog after another... that is why I find your software interesting...

I have a few questions to ask if I may...

If you don't mind, can you share with me one of your blogs built using Auto Blogging Software? Because I still can't picture in my head how does an auto-blog look like? Do they look like a normal Wordpress blog?

Also, you suggested us to build 50 blogs.... assuming that I use Wordpress for all my 50 blogs, my question is....

Do you suggest to host all 50 blogs on one hosting account? Or is it better to spread them into different hosting servers?

NOTE: Currently I'm using HostGator (reseller account) and currently I have about 20 blogs - but all these blogs are NOT auto-blogs; I built them manually and wrote my own articles.

Looking forward to your answers.

Thanks!

leon.

Dear Leon,

Thanks for your purchase. Blogs built using other automation tools may look more like a crap yard with junk posts but with my software, since you decide on what gets published to your blog, you will have a high quality blog that more or less looks like a natural or manually updated blog. Shoot me an email and I will show you some example blogs. You really won't find if they're automated blogs :)

For beginners, all blogs under one account is fine but it is better not to put all eggs in one basket. If you could split them onto different servers, you have a lot of SEO benefits when you consider linking strategies in the future. Say when you want your blogs to point to your sales page or money sites.

You don't need to build a separate automated blog. You can use the software to your existing network of 20 blogs built already :)

Carty..

Dear Jake,

Title is the main element to determine if the page is duplicate or not in the eyes of Google. I always use the translate setting within the software so the titles are also translated to make it unique. Some of the translated titles won't be in proper grammar, like 1 in 10 articles. I modify those titles alone.

PS: This thread is for discussing about the action plan. I advice others to make a new thread if your question is not related directly to the action plan so it helps me organize things better and that way others having the same question will find it easy.

Hi Carty,

Just purchased the software and it looks great.

I have a few questions about promotion, that I think fit into this thread.

I know that you have to test everything, but since it takes a few weeks to see the results, while I could be building more blogs, I figure you already have this down to a science as to what works best usually. I know SEO is tricky, so I'm not going to hold you to it :)

Anyways, I understand that translating content, makes it more unique.

So on your blogs that you build do you (and do you recommend) always translating?

If I found a good content in English, do you suggest going to say Spanish, then back to English?

And also in the software it asks for categories on your blog. So for the blogs I've built manually, I've always made the categories from the keywords I was targeting.

Do you do that and recommend it? And if so how many categories do you recommend per blog, or better, what would be the max you would do?

Also in your example with using subdomains, I'm not really clear on how would the software know to which subdomain to post to. or where you referring to categories, because that's what it asks for each RSS Feed?

And lastly, I think :) , how many posts do you normally set up per day?

Thanks,

Vitaly

Thanks.

Re:7-Day Action Plan To Make Over $150/day
Posted by Carty - 2010/05/07 10:27

Dear Vitaly,

        Thank you for the purchase. SEO is tricky when you have 1 white hat website and trying to hit hard on the first page of Google for the most highly competitive keywords. You actually try to get your main domain ranked for those keywords even though a lot of individual pages may rank well by themselves.

But in case of auto blogging, it is totally different. We focus on being strong with the basic SEO so with a lot of good content, most of the posts (individual pages) rank well at least in long tail keywords. So, even with the minimal traffic we receive to make a few dollars per blog, we scale it by auto blogging. Hope I'm being clear enough to you.

In my experience, I first attempt to find foreign feeds, translate them once to english for very good content. If I don't find them enough, I search for some english feeds and sometimes translate but for some feeds I don't translate if I leave a link back to original article. A mix of translated feeds and a few copy ones don't make a big deal and still keeps my blogs fresh :).

Regarding categories, I don't recommend you to auto generate them based on tags or so because when you have more categories it makes no point having them as tags will be doing the same job already. I suggest having around 5-7 or max 10 categories per blog.

In case of sub-domain blogs, you simply have to add a new blog that is on the sub domain. For every sub-domain blog, you add it to the software separately.

I always recommend making a max of 3 posts per day at the start. Later increase it by 1 post per month. Example, from the 2nd month, you will make 4 per day and so on.. This makes it look more natural to the eyes of Google.

Hope to have answered all your questions.

Regards,
Carty..

Carty,

Thank you for a fast and great response.

I'm sure it'll help others as well.

One more question on the keywords I forgot to ask.

Because when you mentioned ranking for different pages w/long tail keywords, so in doing your research what is your general criteria for the keywords.

Correct me if I'm wrong, I get what you're saying about the difference with auto-blogging vs. regular seo "work", but we still need to focus on buying keyword phrases, right?

And normally you would focus on making sure there's some search volume, and let's say less than 50,000 competing pages in exact match.

I know everyone's criteria is different, but is that something you stick to as well, or do you just look for targeted buying keywords?

Thanks again,

Vitaly

Dear Alexis,

     Thank you for your purchase. At the moment you can set the category for every feed you add. If you want to change category on per post basis, it will be added in the next version.

I would recommend a niche having around 50K searches a month. Anything more than that? COnsider brekng it down to sub-niches.

To both Vitaly Alexis and others:

You really don't need to struggle hard finding the right keywords that would work. You just have to find a niche and that's it. The secret untold trick here is, the original feed website owner would have done the research already :) That is why he ranked well and so you found him. Therefore when you use the same exact keywords, with a little bit of twist in your content to make them unique, your pages will rank well too :)

Hope you guys get this idea.

Many Thanks Nick.
I have yet another question about a concept I can't seem to understand. I had a few sites but never a blog.

Doing SEO for a page on a site is the same with doing seo for a blog post? I mean everything is similar with the on page seo for a site? Like keywords, descriptions and so on?

If so, when your software gets and publishes the posts, it also copies the meta tags for that post?

P.S: I'd like to learn more about how SEO for blogs works. If you have any resource that might help, I'd really appreciate it. A blogging guide or something like that.

Thanks again, :cheer:

Dear Alex,

        Yes, the basic SEO steps remain the same for blogs or static html pages. However, in the case of blogs, you don't have to worry about them too much, especially when using WordPress because a lot of free plug-ins are available out there to take care of these tags and keywords automatically.

I don't have a guide on special SEO for blogs but a while ago I wrote a guide on how to make money from blogs. It maybe a basic guide if you're already used to blogging but if you're a newb and never built a blog before, it might help a bit. The guide I'm talking about is available at www.Blog4BigBucks.com

Another thing I may do is, being new at this, I may just do one blogger.com blog for practice, work on getting it to a dollar or two a day with CPA, and then go on to Wordpress. I saw where one of Carty's warnings about Google is they delete blogs for no seeming reason sometime. I was going to do it all for awhile with blogger.com until I saw that remark somewhere.

A question, and it seems I saw this somewhere maybe in this thread about sub domains. Can I just buy a generic domain name like myname.com and just build sub domains off off that like freestuff.myname.com? I don't want to start buying a domain name for every blog yet due to the cost. Eventually I could when making money if that is recommended, but not to begin with.

Hello Carty and other readers,

I bought ABS two days ago... I am very happy with the software and my new learning experiences so far.

Also I appreciate the work and support you have provided so far - Keep up the good work !

I do understand the sub domain concept, and implementation of an additional blog into each subdomain.

My question is: Do these subdomains remain as separate entities or do you cross reference them in each blog? And how do you best accomplish this? Or is this done, just to save money on buying addional domains?

Also I have wordpress domains and probably subdomains soon ;-), and started to create Blogger blogs which feels a bit like an information overload and a lot of new techniques to master for this newbee.

What do you recommend, would give me the highest possible ROI, WordPress Domain standalone, or WP with some subdomains or a blogger blog? I try to focus on one method. Or do you recommend to have the variety of different blogs?

Dear Alexis,

Thank you for your purchase. At the moment you can set the category for every feed you add. If you want to change category on per post basis, it will be added in the next version.

I would recommend a niche having around 50K searches a month. Anything more than that? COnsider brekng it down to sub-niches.

Sorry I am not sure if it has been mentioned in this thread already, but I was wondering what is the best way to monetize your auto blogs? What is a guaranteed way that your auto blog would consistently make at least $1/day?

I don't know if adsense is any good because a lot of people (like myself) use adblockers so adsense never shows up on any websites. Also for my niche site, I have not gotten even 1 single click on my adsense ads.

Ok now does this mean that the website will be based off this one keyword that gets 50k or more searches a month ?..basically will the site just be centered around that one keyword..as far as all of the feeds and articles ?..Example:" make money online"...we will just find all the content we can on this keyword..feeds, articles.plr ...correct ?

Here is what I was planing..building sites on sub domains..each sub domain based on one keyword only...is this right ?...also I wanted to ask when you created all of your sites on sub domains was they all on 1 c-panel or did each sub domain have its very own c-panel ?

Adsense is still the best way. A few percentage of online users block the ads but you still get a good CTR from the rest. You can of course try other monetization methods like banner ads and affiliate marketing too.

Hi Carty,

In the 7 Day Action Plan, you mention finding good keywords for each niche, but what do you do with them? Do you search for blogs based on each keyword, or do you import feeds based on teh main keyword and then manipulate them using the other keywords?

I'm still unsure about how to use the range of keywords to good advantage.

 I'm setting up WP blogs using the WP multisite function. I'm using the main keyword for each blog as the sub-domain. Would it be best to set up a number of Categories using the best keywords and then distribute the blog entries within these categories?

Any ideas on this folks?

Thanks Carty!

I'm still a little confused though...

I'm trying to get a proper handle on how to ensure that the long-tail keywords are included, so that they can start getting indexed by the search engines.

Lets say you had a niche with 50 good keywords, for example:

wedding planning - main keyword wedding planning checklist wedding planning guide wedding planning tips
wedding planning services wedding planning books, etc...

Do you:

1. just search for feeds for the main keyword (wedding planning) - and use the other keywords as Categories?
2. Search for feeds using - say- the top 5 keywords and use the others as Categories?
3. Seacrh for feeds for all the keywords?

(I suppose another solution is to search for articles for each of the keywords...?)

Your software is awesome, but I think these are the important details that will really make the difference in being really successful with it. Perhaps a pdf or video on this topic would be useful..

Many thanks
Mikey

Omaldo: Yes those plug-ins are the same. I now use a better plug-in called Sexy Bookmarks and it works extremely well. Grabs attention a lot and most bloggers are using it.

Absolute necessary? All of them indeed! It's like many little pennies adding up to a dollar. :)

Mikey: Don't break your head with complicated research. Just pick the competive keyword and add categories based on sub-keywords or related keywords.

Long tails: The feed source website would have already done the research on which would automatically be inserted on your posts :)

Hope you get my point?

I already have some blogs running with other auto blogging software. If they are not doing so well traffic wise, how do I go about using your software instead?

De-activate the other software and just start ABS? Or wipe the site clean and start over fresh with ABS?

Also, Should each new blog be on wordpress for a domain i already own or will be buying? Or can they be free Blogger blogs to get similar results?

Also, the 50 blogs I will be building. Are these 50 in different niches or decide on say 10 niches and making 5 sub niche blogs for each of those niches?

I will re-read the plan to try to figure out. Just a little confused. :huh:

hi. i think i can help you out here.

abs is a posting tool, it posts the article to your blog it is the same thing as you would login and do it by hand.

having said that, you can

- let the other software continue to run,
- post in addition by hand
- post in addition with abs

it greatly depends on how you want to work.

if you decide, that you prefer abs and do not want to continue with the other one, i would just deactivate the other one.
but keep the content. otherwise you would start from scratch.

to the topics of the blogs. i feel this is and should be completely up to you.

it does not depend on abs, but on your 'action plan' or envisioned result...

thomas.

I have 38 blogs so far. I am finding it difficult(slowewb) to update my blogs as I get a message that the ezine.com has reached it's download limit("locks up". I have used the software update link in the middle of the update index page for about 4-5 of my blogs and then it locks up.

So I tried one blog and it locks up with same message.

But, on the good side. The blogs that I do update and carefully edit the scheduled postings are getting traffic from all around the globe, very cool! I am about at 30 hits a month.

You just have to download the entire plug-ins folder to your PC after setting up everything on one blog.

Simply upload this folder to your new blogs and most of the setting should be retained but it is required that you still check the setting individually if they have been applied as some plug-ins use the database to store their settings.

Wayne, Google changes their algorithms every night, literally. Those who build auto blogs with conventional plugins should only worry because they post everything from the source websites, inclduing crap and this will make it easy for Google to determine it is a spam blog.

But with the case of my software, it isn't totally automated. Only the posts you select will go to your blogs and you can even edit the content if required. I would call this as smart blogging rather than auto blogging :)

The business model explained in the 7-Day action plan has no shortcuts or tricky ways to do things. It is a proven model followed by regular bloggers but we're doing it smartly and more quickly. There is nothing that could go wrong in it, even for several years to come.

My blogs are still kicking hard and in fact my revenue has only increased since publishing the guide.

Happy Smart Blogging!

Hello and thanks for the great software. I have read and digested the 7 day plan and read all comments here, but I have a few questions.

1. You said to target keywords with over 50k worldwide seaches. The competition for keywords with this many searches is massive, millions of results! How do you expect our auto blogs to rank well in google searches and achieve traffic?

2. If you are using an rss feeds that are updated daily (which is ideal for autoblogging), getting any of these posts indexed in google is probably very unlikely without making lots of changes to each post. Surely if you are making lots of changes to posts for indexing this isnt really autoblogging?

When I start my first autoblog I will be submitting a sitemap to google to see how the indexing is progressing, lets be honest..NO INDEXING NO TRAFFIC = NO ADSENSE CLICKS.

Do you have any examples of successful autoblogs?

1. Auto Blogs usually have serveral hundred posts/pages. At least a few of them should rank high on these competitive niches based on long tail keywords. These pages/posts are the key to your earnings.

2. Making changes is better. Which means, you're doing something like a regular blogging but in a more smarter and quicker way. Imagine if you were having 50 blogs, going through the admin panel of all blogs and making posts, that isnt practical for a single person. But possible and can be done easily with this software.

95% of my blogs are all successfull :) 5% miss on the keywords I picked.

Thanks for the reply. To be honest my blogs are nowing slowly being updated with content and indexing IS taking place, which is excellent. So over time, search engines will see this as natural blog posts and gradually index my blog.

Another question I have is tags in blogger. With the feeds I am using, the tags that come with each post seem to be only one word tags only. Will this effect how my blog posts will be found by search engines, or will the title of each post and post content be sufficient?

I am going for 100 blogs, which is my maximum with one blogger account I think.

I also think SEO is massive for this to be successfull, I using a Excel sheet for my blogs with a list of blog directory sites and search engines that i will submit all blogs too. This is more hard work, but nothing is FREE!!!

aspire: If you're planning to go 100 with Blogger, I would suggest you to stay away from blogger as much as possible as they're notorious to randomly closing down blogs for no reason. You could simply buy 1 domain and install multiple wordpress blogs on sub-domains which would be something like maintaining your own blogger network.

Jeffries: I have 36 blogs in total and I make about 15 posts per week on average to each of them. Every week, a shot of update brings in about 800 posts and I quickly go over them and delete about 200 of them which look spam or junk and edit some titles mostly to the remaining 600 posts. This wont take me more than 2 hours and it's easy. Try it out.

@Jeffries: The full version will have the same features. In Demo version, there will be a featured link to our website added at the end of every post you make.

@chocochoco: I have spoken to CoolHandle and they seem to do fine with auto blogs. Domains, GoDaddy or Namecheap the best.

2. Yes, we disable trackbacks almost always.

3. Yup, the software extracts full feeds for you.

4. No precautions as such. Auto Blogging with other tools is what black hat. But with my software, you can be create high quality auto blogs which is totally legal and safe.

@cufflinks: Sorry, we disabled the print option for SEO reasons. It causes duplicate contenting on the eyes of Google. The only way left is to copy paste to Word and print :)

Carty..

Jeffries: I have 36 blogs in total and I make about 15 posts per week on average to each of them. Every week, a shot of update brings in about 800 posts and I quickly go over them and delete about 200 of them which look spam or junk and edit some titles mostly to the remaining 600 posts. This wont take me more than 2 hours and it's easy. Try it out.

Hi Carty,

Just new here and still researching if I will buy the ABS, my question is how do you install multiple WP in a single domain? My host is Hostgator.

Its very easy. On your hostgator control panel, goto the option 'Sub-Domains' and create there. It is just like creating a folder on your domain and accessing it by the following link: foldername.domainname.com

You can also install multiple separate copies of Wordpress in separate folders under your domain name.

yourdomain.com/folder1/wordpressblog1
yourdomain.com/folder2/wordpressblog2
yourdomain.com/folder3/wordpressblog3

yourdomain.com/folder4/wordpressblog4

In your domain's CPanel go to File Manager to create the folders.

When you install Wordpress you will have the option to select which folder to install in.

Theoretically you could install an unlimited number of blogs under one domain.

You're going to do a little bit of research today. Find all profitable niches. High paying keyword niches or whatever. You don't need to hunt for keywords paying $10/click. $1/click is still a good rate. So pick ANY niche with some COMPETITION.

You can collect 50 niches by day 1. Collect about 7-10 for this week. If the niche is too broad, you're going to split them into sub-niches onto sub-domains with a highest traffic keyword in the main domain.

Hi Carty,

Let me start by thanking you for your clear and concise action plan for auto blogging.

I'm a newbie in Internet Marketing and I stumbled upon your software and I'm really interested in making just $1/day from a blog.

I believe it's possible and I'm all geared up to build my blog. However, being a noob, I'm trying to understand how can I research on the high paying keyword niches? What sort of tools or website should i goto?

How can I work towards just making $1 dollar /day? Thru Adsense alone? or some other affiliate products?

Appreciate your thoughts and advice.

TIA.

KEYWORD RESEARCH:
Google Adwords Keyword Tool (GAKT) at https://adwords.google.com/select/KeywordToolExternal

This will show you the number of searches per month and average cost per click (CPC) that Adwords advertisers are paying to advertise.

To get CPC values you need to be signed in with your Adwords account.
To get an Adwords account (which is free) go to google.com/adwords and look for the "Start Now" button.

Start plugging in keywords (eg car, computer, desk) and look for keywords with around 3000 exact match global monthly searches and an average CPC of $1 or more.

ADSENSE or AFFILIATE:
To be honest I have had little success with affiliate products (eg Amazon or Clickbank) on my autoblogs.

I think affiliate sales require more unique "pre-selling" content to persuade a visitor to click and then buy.

However it could be just the niches that I am targeting - maybe others have had more success?

Anyway, my vote is for Adsense.

More details about all of the above can be found in my signature link - Advanced Auto Blogging Blueprint.
It is a free download, you only need to supply a valid email address.

Thanks for the tip. Read thru your article about autoblog blueprint.

Good stuffs. B)

As mentioned in your article, you said that it's a numbers game.. that we should design and go as many blogs as we can.

How do you keep your monthly operation cost low and yet be making enough to sustain the cost? Does it mean that the first couple of months, there will be little or no income as the indexing and SEO would need time.

If we are looking at building 30 blogs, would that amount to quite a substanial amount? Any ballpark estimate of these cost?

Thanks.

The main costs are:

1. Hosting - Hostgator is only $10 per month for an unlimited number of sites

2. Domain names - $10 per year per domain

3. Unique content - I recommend at least 1 page (you should try for more). Either do it yourself or outsource ($5 per article at fiverr.com)

4. Auto content - one off cost of $67 (i think) for Auto Blogging Software

5. Promotion - you can get alot of linkbuilding done for $5 at fiverr.com. I would recommend spending $20 in the first year on 4 separate link building gigs to kickstart a site.

Lets look at first and second year costs for 30 sites (all separate domains):

FIRST YEAR:
hosting $10 x 12 months = $120
Domain names $10 x 30 = $300
1 page unique content $5 x 30 = $150 autocontent = $67
promotion $20 x 30 = $600
TOTAL: $1237 = $41 per site

If you want to lower the cost then write the unique content yourself and/or skip the promotion.
Some of the first year cost will be offset by earnings.

SECOND YEAR:
hosting $10 x 12 months = $120
promotion $20 x 30 = $600
TOTAL: $720

If your sites aren't earning way more than $720 per year then you must have got your keyword research completely wrong.

One more thing:
This is not only a numbers game, but a MIND game.

You have to be able to PERSEVERE with your efforts.
You have to get used to WORK FIRST, GET PAID LATER ON.

KEYWORD RESEARCH:
Google Adwords Keyword Tool (GAKT) at adwords.google.com/select/KeywordToolExternal
This will show you the number of searches per month and average cost per click (CPC) that Adwords advertisers are paying to advertise.

To get CPC values you need to be signed in with your Adwords account.
To get an Adwords account (which is free) go to google.com/adwords and look for the "Start Now" button.

Start plugging in keywords (eg car, computer, desk) and look for keywords with around 3000 exact match global monthly searches and an average CPC of $1 or more.

I also take some of the keywords from an initial run and plug them back into the GAKT to generate longer tail phrases.
eg a search for "car" brings up "car rental", "car insurance", "used car", "car parts" - do individual runs with these.

What you are looking for is keywords with at least 1000 global searches per month and ave CPC of at least $1.

COMPETITION ANALYSIS:
Your real competition is the top 10 search results for your keyword phrase.
Use Firefox as your browser and install the SEO Quake plugin. Set the plugin's options to show page rank (PR) and incoming links.

Now do Google searches for your candidate keyword phrases.
You want to see sites in the top 10 with PR of 2 or less. The more sites like this the better.
Once you have found some keyword phrases with low competition either create a webpage about the phrase, or build a website using an exact match domain name using the phrase.

What I have just described is a pain in the ass to do. Manually it takes ages.

I used to use (expensive) software to scrape the Google keywords tool to build a keyword list, then a paid monthly service to analyse the list for cdompetition.

However I have just recently found cheap (less than $10 - once off) software that will do pretty much the same thing.
Check it out here: http://advancedautoblogging.info/nicheanalyzer (aff link)

Hello Everyone,

Just a quick question: As carty explain that one should make a main domain with broad keyword and then make sub domains with targeted keywords...

1.) Most of the times broad keywords domains are already purchased by some one else and buying those websites is not possible because they cost $1000. What should we do in that aspect?

2.) Person like me who is not having a good income can't invest in many domain names as they unnecessarily burden the amount on us,,, so what should one like me should do. Can we make a simple name domain and then make sub domains on that with targeted or broad keywords:

For ex-

MAIN DOMAIN
abc.com

SUB DOMAIN
health.abc.com
weightloss.abc.com
blackteapepper.abc.com   etc.....

Hoping for anyone to reply...
And if Carty can reply this post then i will be very thankful for the same.

Thanks :)

Not all broad keyword domains are taken. You just have to search a bit longer.

Anyway, you could still buy a generic domain and have subdomains on your targeted keywords and it works very well!

Carty..

There are plenty of generic domains available. Here's some help:
Let's look for domains relating to "HDTV".

Method 1:
Go to the "Search Suggest" tool at http://imcheatsheets.com/memberarea/dnt/index.php
When I type in "hdtv" it days that "hdtvresolution.net" is available.
There's 1 good domain name.

Method 2:
Go to Godaddy.com and type "hdtv" into the domain name search box.
It will tell you that hdtv.com, net & org are taken.
But underneath will be some suggested names that are available.
One of them is "hdtv-cheap.com".
Now I don't really like hyphenated domain names, but "cheaphdtv" looks like an interesting idea to work with.

Go back to Godaddy.com and type in "cheaphdtv".
It will say that cheaphdtv.com, net & org are taken, but it offers other suggestions that are not taken, including:
newcheaphdtv.com, cheaphdtvblog.com, findcheaphdtv.com

There's 3 more good domain names.

Method 3:
Go to Nameboy.com
Type "hdtv" into the "Primary Word:" field, then click the "Go Nameboy Go" button.
It shows heaps of available domain names, including:
hdtvdaily.net, hdtvedition.com, insiderhdtv.com
Thats 3 more.

Method 4:
Now I am on a roll, being inspired by some of the ideas from the first 3 methods.
Ideas are just popping into my head:
hdtvinsider.net - available
hdtvadviser.net - available
hdtvadvice.org - available

Including these 3, that's 10 good domains relating to HDTV that are available.
And it only took me about 10 minutes to find them.

Pick a topic and try these methods and I dare you NOT to find a suitable domain name!

Hi, I am new to autoblogging software which I use only for few days. I didn't know how it works. I was just playing with the software but over night in change the PR of my webpage from 0-1 and I only published 4 articles on my blog with links to my webpage. Now I have also instaled most of the plugins but I could not locate and instal 4 of them. My question is: what eshop plugin could you recommend to enable me present my own real products (organic skin care and herbal remedy)?

WP e-Commerce from http://getshopped.org/

PROS:
Free
Highly customisable
Can handle a wide range of payment options, including PayPal

Extensive help forum
Lots of experienced consultants available to help you (for a price)

CONS:
Steep learning curve
Help forum a bit hit and miss, can take a while to get a reply
May be too complicated if you are only selling a small number of products
Documentation is a bit skimpy in some areas

hi,

never tried wp-ecommerce.

i use wp-estore and am pretty satisfied. i took wp-estore, because it is quite cheap and integrates perfectly with an affilate plugin and a membership plugin by the same author. even that i had no problems using it, the site/forum show fast support by the creators.

while not being free at all, the complete package 'store, affilate, membership' is cheaper than just one premium plugin for affiliate OR membership by wp-ecommerce.

note, that wp-estore can handle physical products, but is mainly for digital products. hence, it supports shipping and taxes, but should not be as complete here as general stores like xtc are.

check it out:
- affiliate link: http://salvador24.com/uses/wordpress-shopping-cart
- non affiliate: http://www.tipsandtricks-hq.com/

i bought a package (store+affiliate+membership+theme) as it is discounted then and i think, i will make good use of affiliate and membership somewhere in the future. the theme is not required at all, you can use it to any theme (like i do: default twentyten).

how does the store work:
upload and activate the plugin, configure currency and paypal address.
then, you maintain products in the plugin and include them with shortcode anywhere you like. it supports category listings and such, but i did not use them until now. i created posts for showing the stuff and included an add to cart button via shortcode - you can also add buy now buttons (go directly to pay, no cart). it supports free downloads and squeeze pages (pay by subscribing and giving you email address) it comes with quite a few shortcodes for different aspects, and i found it very easy to add a 'custom' shortcode to output the stuff just a little bit different as i wanted it.

see it here (german only): http://uebernatuerlich.es

regards,
thomas.

3000 is just a guideline figure - keyword phrases around this level tend not to be too competitive. However, if you find a higher traffic phrase and you think that the competition is not too strong, then by all means go for it.

If you have 2 keyword phrases with the same competition, then the one with the higher search volume is normally preferred.

A "good" niche is one with adequate traffic that is not too competitive.

Also, remember that the "green bar" in the Google keyword tool is ADVERTISER competition, not search result competition.

To properly check competition for the search results you need to look at the top 10 sites that come up when you do a Google search for your keyword phrase.
