There is many bits of software out there that will auto make the wordpress, blogspot accounts and setup the blogs for posting. Can you add this to the software?

This would make it 100% BETTER

You mean free subdomain on WordPress.com or installing them onto your own sub-domains?

I prefer the second one as it gives total control over your blog rather than having it on someone else' domain.

You can use my software both on the free Blogger.com blogs as well as on your self-hosted WordPress blogs.

Answer the 1st Question...

Your software should create accounts, can you add this?

No, it wont create accounts. I recommend you to setup the blogs manually because only then they can be of high-quality. You must take a little bit of your time in tweaking your blogs including it's theme, keywords and every other factor which makes it look natural both to the eyes of search engines as well as your visitors. This way, you blog tends to earn more than run-of-the-mill type of blogs that are created in few minutes.
