

[NEW FEATURE] Toggle on/off item listing by status

Posted by Johnno - 2010/05/12 04:09

I have 15 blogs loaded into ABS, each with 2 or 3 feeds.

After using ABS for a couple of months I have hundreds of greyed out entries.

It is a hassle to have to scroll through these greyed out entries to get to the newly downloaded items.

I would like to have added an option to be able to selectively display new (unposted) items only.

Did you know that you can delete the unwanted articles? Simply select the articles which are posted already and press the 'DEL' button on your keyboard. Also, when you have a mix of posted and unposted articles, simply click on the box above the checkbox column and it will sort them accordingly.

So, how does the program remember which posts have been made? I am noticing on first feed that I get about 15-20 posts. If I delete them after they are posted, how will I avoid getting duplicates next time (or at some time in the future)? thanks

Yes, it is available already. Even if you delete the items from the software, it still keeps track of your old items so they won't be downloaded again when this feed is updated next time and only the new ones are downloaded.
