Maybe I'm reading this post at <http://webmagnates.org/bloggging/how-to-make-money-from-automated-blogs.html> wrong, but I kinda stumbled here ...

"You can easily sign-up for another Google account from a different computer and have another set of blogs in it."

Whoa, not exactly as easy as you make it seem, there. At least, as far as I know, you need to create a whole new identity: new business, credit card, address, email, ip address, phone number ... So are you creating a new business for every 5-7 blogs? Or did I misunderstand?

No, you should not sign up for new Adsense account for every 5 blogs. I suggest you to create a new Blogger account for every 5 Blogs. For Adsense, just use 1 or maybe 2 if you could get another 1.

Hope you can understand?

most people use like these

300 blogs = 1 adsense account

If someone use more than that post your opinion

You can have any number of websites under one account. But if you could get another account, it is always better to have half of it onto your other account.
